SHOULD PATRONIZE HOME MERCHANTS

Ukiah merchants have never in the history of the town had a more magnificent display of holiday goods than are on exhibition this week. Every window in town is resplendent in holiday garb and the multitude of suitable goods for the Christmas trade covers a range extensive enough to fit the purse of rich or poor. Our merchants have been reaping a great harvest this season as the difficulty in securing goods in the city has compelled those who have usually done their Christmas shopping in San Francisco to rely upon the stock of the home merchants to satisfy their demands. To these people the experience has been an eye opener. They never realized before that they could do so well at home, and the merchants will profit therefrom in the future.

Should Be Encouraged

Henry McKenzie has about completed the work of rebuilding the Gualala bridge, and it is a good job and the contractors were fortunate in securing Mr. McKenzie to superintend the work, as it is one of the best that the county has ever had done in all the history of bridge building. Let us have more of such work. Men like Mr. McKenzie can do as good work as foreign bridge builders. He and the contractors are to be congratulated upon the good work.

Master?" Rev. W. B. Burton; Anthem, "The Story of Old."

Dr. Gregory Dead

Dr. James R. Gregory, formerly of this city, passed away in Reno, Nevada, last Tuesday afternoon. Death came to him at he residence of his son, Dr. E. B. Gregory, and resulted from a chill following a ninety mile ride overland in the cold weather. Deceased was a native of Albany, N. Y., aged 65 years, and was a surgeon in the army during the civil war.

STERLING CITIZEN CALLED TO REST

Hon. John McMurry, Pioneer, Miner, Legislator and Business Man, Answers Summons

Hon. John McMurry, one of the sterling pioneers of California, died at high noon last Sunday at his home in the Palace hotel in this city. He was of the brave and sturdy stock that helped build up the great west, and to whose deeds and memories the state owes a debt that can never be fully repaid.

Mr. McMurry had not been in the best of health for some time. About four years ago his wife died very suddenly and from that time Mr. McMurry seemed to fail in health. He took a slight cold on Wednesday and went to bed and rheumatism attacked him, causing him considerable pain, but the attack was not considered serious. He went to bed Saturday evening and apparently rested easily, as the nurse was not aroused. The next morning his son-in-law, Robert Duncan, entered the room and saw that there was something wrong and called in Dr. Rea, but life was fast ebbing away. A blood vessel had burst in the brain, causing death in a short time.

John McMurry was born in Kentucky, April 1, 1830, and was 76 years, 8 months and 15 days old. When only 17 years old young McMurry enlisted in the army and fought through the Mexican war. He took part in many sharp engagements and came out with high honors and special mention from the commanding officer. Only a few of that grand army of young men that stormed the heights of Chapultepec are now living. After the war Mr. McMurry returned to the his old homestead, and then in 1850 he joined in with the long line of Argonauts that crossed the plains by ox teams, and landed in California and started to the mines. He located in Trinity county where he followed mining for forty-five years. In 1873 he was united in marriage to Miss Ella Wood, of Suisun. Three children survive him, Mrs. J. R. LaRue, of Sacramento, Mrs. Robert Duncan and Miss Ella McMurry, of Ukiah.

Mr. McMurry disposed of some of his Trinity mining stock six years ago and came to Mendocino county and made a number of investments, locating in Ukiah. He was interested in the Irvine & Muir Lumber company and had other interests at Willits. He was also a stockholder in the Bank of Ukiah and was a director of that institution for a term of years.

About a third of a century ago Mr. McMurry was elected to the assembly on the Democratic ticket from Trinity and Tehama counties and was thereafter elected to the state senate from the old Trinity-Shasta district for two terms. He was an honest, conscientious legislator and was one of the party wheel horses in early days. No man stood higher in the state than Honest John McMurry.

The death of John McMurry calls to mind the death of another sturdy pioneer, Hon. Hugh M. LaRue, who died in Sacramento last week, December 12th. Hugh LaRue and John McMurry were bosom friends of a life time. They were born in Kentucky in 1830, Mr. LaRue being six weeks older. They grew up as boys together and were fast friends. Mr. LaRue came to California in '49 and John McMurry came the next year. They were friends together in this state, and were associated in politics for a number of years, both attaining positions of trust and honor. Mr. LaRue's oldest son married Mr. McMurry's oldest daughter, and every summer the two old pioneers of "the days of old, the days of gold" had a pleasant visit together.

Mr. McMurry is the last of the McMurry family, there being no male descendants to perpetuate the name.

In speaking of the death of Hugh LaRue, the Sacramento Bee paid him a deserved tribute. As he and Mr. McMurry were so much alike and such fast friends for three-quarters of a century we publish that eulogy of the other pioneer as our tribute to Honest John McMurry:

"He was a man of sterling worth and solid integrity. He was sturdy and uncompromising in his opinions, militant and pugnacious in political matters, strong in his likes and dislikes, as he was strong and sturdy in all phases of his character, but ever and always a man who commanded the respect of even his bitterest political enemies, ever and always a man whose private and public integrity stood unimpeachable.

"He was one of the last of the old magnificent race of the kings of men who builded this west—men of great nature's royal blood—men of stainless honor and dauntless courage—men never small in anything they did—men with whom Fear was as unknown as Dishonor was shunned—men who greatly lived and grandly did—men to whose memories the Present should lowly doff its hat.

"Of that Grand Army of Knightly Men, only a handful are left. They are going down one by one into the Valley of the Shadow. A breath of Time, and the scenes that have known them all so often—the scenes they have enriched by their deeds and ennobled with their manhood—will know them no more forever,

"As one by one they are passing away, it is meet that the living should honor them as departing MEN deserved to be honored."

The funeral took place Tuesday morning from the Masonic hall. Rev. Crook, of the Episcopal church, conducting the ceremony. After the religious services the Masons took charge and buried the body with the honors of the Order, Mr. McMurry having been an honored member of the mystic tie for over half a century. The funeral was largely attended, showing the respect and esteem in which deceased was held.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB PROPOSE CHANGES

The state convention of sportsmen met in Sacramento last week and effected an organization. Among other things they did was to adopt resolutions recommending that the open season for doves be from July 1st to the 15th and a closed season on grouse for three years. Also the bag limit to be thirty-five ducks in one day's shoot, more effective legislation to prevent one man from killing more than the limit, abolishing the law forbidding the killing of fish eating birds, excepting only blue and white crows; making a robin a protected bird, the close season for trout from November 15th to May 1st; for salmon from September 15th to October 20th, and limiting the take of black bass to fifty in one day. There will be no closed season for striped bass.

AMENDMENTS TO GAME LAW

Senator Sanford, upon receiving a number of communications relative to the game laws, has decided to offer several amendments to the law when the matter comes up for consideration this winter at Sacramento. He proposes to remove the restriction on killing gray squirrels, or tree squirrels, and allow the ranchers to kill them, as the squirrels have proved to be very destructive to acorns which are a great food for hogs in the fall of the year. A number of ranchers have asked that this part of the game law be repealed.

He also intends to make an effort to raise the deer limit to five deer during the season instead of two as the law now prescribes. As the law now stands, the farmer obeys the law and the sports from the city do not. The provisions of the law should be such that all would respect it and try to see that it was rightfully enforced. Few people will go out hunting for just two deer, the result being that they ignore the law and make no effort to see that it is enforced, as they become violaters themselves. The law should be reasonable and such that all would obey its provisions and the result would be that we would have more game. Mr. Sanford will be pleased to get the opinions of the people before going to Sacramento regarding fish and game, as he intends to pay particular attention to these laws this year.

Suit Over Timber Land

The superior court has been occupied since Tuesday with the trial of the case of the Albion Lumber company vs. A. R. Johnson. Some of the points of the case are to be submitted to a jury. The suit is over some valuable timber land owned by Johnson which he had bonded to the Albion company. It is alleged that he declined to fulfill the contract. Miles Standish, Superintendent H. B. Hickey and a number of other prominent coast residents are in attendance.

CUPID COMPLAINS OF POOR BUSINESS

Mrs. O. H. White, who is Cupid's exclusive agent in this county, complains that business in her line is not keeping up with what should be expected during the glad holiday season. She points out that the merchants and others are doing an immense volume of business and that surely one would expect the wily little god of love to keep ahead of sordid and platonic venders of holiday wares. She is disappointed that such is not the case, as she has issued so far this month only fifteen licenses to marry as against twenty-two last month. She is hopeful that the remaining days of the month will show a rush of business appropriate with the spirit of the season. The following licenses have been issued this week:

Fred Hanson and Hattie Sanderson, both of Fort Bragg.

George H. Perkins and Alta Waldvogel, both of Potter valley.

Frank Ekeman and Emma Westergard, the former of Caspar and the latter of Fort Bragg.

Terry Beebe and Anna Christianson, both of Point Arena.

Jesse W. Porterfield and Ethel Leota Elledge, both of Ukiah.

Robert Marders Married

Robert Marders came in from Hullville shortly after the election and went up to Eugene, Oregon, where on the 10th of December he was united in marriage to Mrs. M. E. Kelly, of that city. Bob and his bride arrived in this city last Saturday and were kept busy receiving the congratulations of friends for some time. They departed the next day for Hullville where they will remain for the present. The Dispatch joins Bob's many friends in wishing him good luck.

No Use For Tonapah

Andy Hensley did not tarry long in Tonopah. He returned to this city last week, having been gone only a week. He remained over night in Tonopah, and that was enough for him, as there was no accommodations there. There was much sickness—ten people dying that night of pneumonia, so Andy decided to pull his freight. He expects to go back there in the spring when there is a chance to live. He reported coal at $70 a ton and wood $60 a cord.

A Folsom Guard

Jay B. Turner is now one of Warden Yell's trusted guards once more. Jay went back on a visit with Guard Elledge and showed himself to be a first class flopper and a dryer, so Yell told him to get on the line. So Jay is now on duty and says the first "Con" that gets out of line or step will get "flat-rocked" plenty.

Mrs. F. Franks and daughter left today for the city to spend the holidays.

HARVEST OF GRIM REAPER

Young and Old Chosen To Cross Dark River

Daniel Archibald Beattie passed away at the home of his parents in this city last Sunday at the age of 29 years, 2 months, and 11 days. Archie Beattie was one of the best young men this community ever produced, and his death is greatly deplored. He had been sick for about a month from typhoid pneumonia, and gradually grew worse, and finally other complications set in resulting in his death.

Archie was a splendid young man and was quite a favorite among the business men. For a long time he drove the express wagon here but later got a position on the train directly under Wells, Fargo & Co., running from San Francisco to Willits. He was later transferred to the Sacramento run, which position he held until his sickness began about a month ago. He was the son of Wm. Beattie, the popular nightwatchman, and leaves a father, mother, and several brothers and sisters to grieve over his untimely taking. The funeral took place from the M. E. Church, South, Wednesday afternoon, and the outpouring of friends and neighbors was a tribute to the worth of the young man.

Death of George W. Hughes

George W. Hughes died at Milbrae on December 13th of consumption and was brought to this city last Saturday the funeral taking place Sunday from the M. E. Church, South, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and was largely attended. He was about 50 years old and had lived in this community for many years, and had made a wide circle of friends. His wife died four years ago and his passing leaves only a daughter to survive him. He was for many years constable and nightwatchman here in town and was a good official. He went to Santa Barbara county a few years ago for his health but never recovered. He leaves a number of relatives and a host of friends to mourn his death.

Death of an Infant

One of the little twin children of Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy died last week from a severe attack of measles. The child was only a few months old and the parents have the sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow.

Return to Mendocino

Mr. and Mrs. George Lammers and daughter passed through Ukiah on Friday on their way to Greenwood where Mr. Lammers is to take a position recently vacated by Bookkeeper Gilkison, who goes to Sea... Mr. Lammers was for a long time assistant cashier of the Bank of Mendocino, and he is one of the best accountants in the county. For several years he has been head bookkeeper for the big paint firm of Bass... & Co., in San Francisco. He and his wife have many friends in the county who will hail their return to the county with delight.

THE ARAB.

An Artist in Manners is This Son of the Orient.

In all matters of sentiment the Arab's instinct is sure. If you can appeal to him on any ground of hospitality or generosity, says the author of "In the Desert," you have a hold on him.

It used to be the boast of Arab poetry in its best days that it "never praised a man except for what was in him," and the habit of judging directly and without regard to surroundings has always been an instinct of the race. All those evidences of worldly prosperity and success which turn the heart of the Anglo-Saxon to water leave the Arab unmoved.

The Arab is an artist in manners. I remember a certain sheik, who was one my traveling companions on the Upper Nile, a tall, grave, keen faced man, of a complexion almost black, with a face as if it had the sun polish on desert sand, who walked among the fellahs on the crowded deck like a chief among his slaves.

With him I shared the same narrow corner of the deck. He was strict in his religious observances and at the appointed hours would spread his mat on the deck, turn in the supposed direction of Mecca and then kneel and rise and kneel again, bowing with his forehead to the ground in the impressive attitude of Moslem prayer.

Quite at direction the least sign of consideration or respect. If we stopped talking or moved to make room, he would measure up the courtesy and when his prayers were over turn and acknowledge it with a grave gesture and a smile that seemed no conventional grimace, but expressed the intention of a deliberate friendliness.

PALISADES FORMATION.

Allied in Time and Type to Mount Holyoke and Cape Blomidon.

The complete height of the cliff was much higher, originally, for the glacier that buried North America down to this latitude eroded billions of tons which went to the upbuilding of Long Island, trap bowlders being common in the soil of Brooklyn, and I have found on the top of the Palisades opposite Spuyten Duyvil glacial groovings and polishings that have survived the presumptive 15,000 years since the glacier melted. The outpour of this mass from a volcano whose crater we cannot so much as guess in this day was tremendous, and it cut the Hudson and Hackensack valleys asunder and pushed the harbor several miles to the southward, while related activities thrust above the surface, either as downpours or uppours, the thousand miles of basaltic hills that chain the Carolinas to the Bay of Fundy, so that our Palisades are allied in form and time to Mount Holyoke and Cape Blomidon.

To the mineralogist our Palisades do not yield as much of interest as we find in the rotting trap of Paterson, a few miles away, from which have been taken the largest prehnites in the world, sea green and wonderful; royal amethysts, balls of silky nectolite and quartz pseudomorphs that copy them; but we find in these cliffs occasional duplicates of the columns that make the Giant's causeway and Fingal's cave—geometric shapes of three, four, five, six and more sides, not a result of crystallization, as was once imagined, for trap is a rock, not a mineral, but of lateral shrinking when it has cooled.—Charles H. Shinner in Century.

No Pure Gold in Use.

"Gold which refined from all impurities," said a jeweler, "and alloys of inferior metals is denominated pure. This means gold of twenty-four carats and this is the standard recognized by the mint master and dealers in gold. As a matter of fact, however, there is no gold so pure. Gold of twenty-two carats is about as pure as it can be got. It has two parts of silver or one part of silver and one part of copper. The former darkens the color of gold, while silver lightens it in color. Twenty-three carat gold is occasionally seen which has a half carat of silver and of copper. Ordinarily eighteen carat gold is the best gold than can be had. Certainly it is the best for jewelry, for pure gold, as it is called, is too soft and will wear away much faster than the owners of it desire.

Stoves.

Stoves which concealed the fire were in use in Greek and Roman households. The ancients also employed open tubes of metal or earthenware and, in addition, heated their rooms with charcoal braziers. Grates for the burning of coal were employed two centuries ago in Great Britain. Many thousands of patents have been taken out upon stoves and ranges since Franklin and Count Rumford pointed out the waste of fuel and of heat involved in open fireplaces.

Atlantic Billows.

The authorities of the United States hydrographic bureau have endeavored to ascertain the size of the Atlantic waves. From careful observations they learn that in height the waves usually average about thirty feet, but in rough weather they attain from forty to forty-eight feet. In storms they are often from 500 to 600 feet long and continue to move about ten or eleven seconds, while the longest yet known measured half a mile and did not exhaust itself for twenty-three seconds.

A Spoiled Sermon.

A clergyman was unexpectedly called upon to preach before the students of a well known college. He chose a sermon from his "barrel" and without reading it went to the college chapel. He got on splendidly until near the close, when he amazed the boys with his peroration, beginning, "And now a word in conclusion to you who are mothers."

Several Dialects.

McCall—What sort of hybrid creature is that new butler of yours? Nuritch—Why, how do you mean? McCall—I called to see you the other day, and when I asked him what time I might catch you at home he said, "At half pawst tin, sah."—Philadelphia Press.

AN ANCIENT PYRAMID.

Story of "the Tomb of the Christian" in Algeria.

The tomb of the Christian in Algeria is a pyramid on the summit of a hill more than 700 feet high, at the edge of the sea. It dates back to before the time of St. Paul, having been built by order of Juba II., the king of Mauretania, as a burying place for himself and his wife, Cleopatra, the daughter of Cleopatra and Mark Antony. The only daughter of Juba and his wife was Drusilla, who married Festus, the governor of Judaea in the time of St. Paul. The tomb can be entered by a low doorway beneath one of the four false doors. These have moldings on them of a cruciform shape and may account for the title, "The Tomb of the Christian." The passage within the pyramid winds round and eventually leads to two chambers shut off from it by folding doors, which can be moved up and down by levers. The tomb must have been rifled of all it contained centuries ago, though some think that by excavating in a downward direction it might still be possible to discover the burying place of the king and queen, supposing the two chambers, like the false doors outside, to be a blind. Doubtless the younger Cleopatra had brought the idea of making a royal mausoleum in the shape of a pyramid from Egypt. Portions of a marble statue of Egyptian design were found at Cherchel, suggesting that an Egyptian colony may once have existed there. There are two other similar monuments in Algeria, in the provinces of Oran and Constantine respectively, the latter being considerably older than the tomb of the Christian, which, however, is the only one referred to in ancient writings.—Autocar.

THE ELDER TREE.

Once Held In High Esteem as a Cure For Epilepsy.

Although tradition tells us that it was on an elder tree that Judas hanged himself, great virtue has long been attributed to it as a cure for epilepsy. The origin of this belief may be found in the following quotation from an old book of charms:

"In the month of October, a little before full moon, pluck a twig of elder and cut the cane that is between two of its knees, or knots, in nine pieces. Bind these pieces in a piece of linen, hang this by a thread about the neck so that they touch the spoon of the heart, or the sword formed cartilage, and that they may more firmly stay in their place bind them thereon with a linen or silken roller wrapped around the body till the thread break of itself. The thread being broken and the roller removed the charm is not to be touched at all with the bare hands, but should be taken hold of by some instrument and buried in a place that nobody may touch it."

Of course unless the instructions were followed strictly a complete cure could not be assured. There is another superstition about the elder which doubtless has saved many a boy a stout caning—namely, that it hinders a child's growth if used as an instrument of punishment.—Sunday Magazine.

Walking to Health.

When there is no organic weakness which is aggravated by the exertion it is the easiest and pleasantest thing to walk right into health. Of course there is no virtue in a dawdling walk. The slow and languid dragging of one foot after the other, which some people call walking, would tire an athlete; it utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate people think they cannot walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step, which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins. This sort of walking exhilarates the whole body, gives tone to the nerves and produces just that sort of healthful fatigue which encourages sound, restful sleep.

Civilization Does Not Enfeeble.

We need not have the slightest fear that civilized man is going to become degenerate from city dwelling or any of the other strains of civilization. Contrary to popular belief, the white man of today has a lower death rate, a higher average length of life, is taller, heavier and stronger than any of his predecessors or any known race of savages. Almost any company of American and English soldiers will contain men who can outrun, outwrestle and outswim the best athletes of any native tribe.—Success Magazine.

Should Help Himself.

"Yes," young Mr. Timmid admitted; "I've always been bashful among the girls."

"But why should you be?" asked Miss Yern encouragingly.

"I can't help myself."

"Gracious!" she exclaimed, pursing up her lips. "If you don't help yourself, how can you expect to get any?"

Speculation.

Experience proves that those who gain money rapidly by speculation almost never keep it, and when they have lost it they are infinitely worse off than they were before.—Success Magazine.

Knew the Place.

Guest (in cheap restaurant)—Here, waiter, this meal is simply vile. I won't pay for it. Where's the proprietor? Waiter—He's out at lunch, sir.

He will never accomplish anything who dreams of what he will do instead of showing what he can do.

DEATH BY A BOMB.

Imaginary Incident of the Crimean War by Tolstoi.

The following imaginary incident of the Crimean war is found in Count Tolstoi's "Sevastopol:" "The bomb, coming faster and faster and nearer and nearer, so that the sparks of its fuse were already visible, descended. 'Lie down!' some one shouted. They lay flat on the ground. Praskouhin, closing his eyes, heard only the bomb crashing down on the hard earth close by. A second passed, which seemed an hour. The bomb had not exploded. He opened his eyes and at that moment caught a sight of the glowing fuse of the bomb not a yard off. Terror, cold terror, excluding every other thought and feeling, seized his whole being. He covered his face with his hands.

"Then he remembered the 12 rubles he owed, a debt in St. Petersburg that should have been paid long ago and the gypsy song he had sung that evening. The woman he loved rose in his imagination, wearing a cap with lilac ribbons, and yet, inseparable from all these and from thousands of other recollections, the present thought, the expectation of death, did not leave him for a moment. 'Perhaps it won't explode,' and with desperate final decision he wished to open his eyes, but at that instant a red flame pierced through the still closed lids, and, with a terrible crash, something struck him in the middle of the chest.

"He jumped up and began to run, but, stumbling over the saber that got between his legs, fell on his side. 'Thank God, I'm only bruised,' was his first thought, and he wished to touch his chest with his hand, but his arms seemed tied to his sides, and it felt as if a vise were squeezing his head. Soldiers flitted past him, and he counted them unconsciously. Then lightning flashed before his eyes, and he wondered whether the shot were fired from a mortar or cannon. 'Cannon, probably, and here are more soldiers—five, six, seven soldiers. They all pass by.' He was suddenly filled with fear that they would crush him. He wished to shout that he was hurt, but his mouth was so dry that his tongue clove to the roof of his mouth.

"He felt it wet about his chest, and this sensation of being wet made him think of water. Fearing lest the soldiers might trample on him, he tried to shout 'Take care with you,' but instead of that he uttered such a terrible groan that he was frightened to hear it. Then other red fires began dancing before his eyes, and it seemed to him that the soldiers put stones on him. He made an effort to push off the stones, stretched himself, and saw and heard and felt nothing more. He had been killed on the spot by a bomb splinter in the middle of his chest."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A sick man talks about everything except death.

No man is big enough to laugh at a real worry.

While loafing a man usually thinks about a big scheme that won't work.

Women as Travelers.

As a matter of genuine fact women in nine cases out of ten, are better travelers than men are. To begin with, if not so stodgily accurate, although that by no manner of means follows, they are more fluent in modern languages. They chatter in them say the male things. Ergo, they are the more colloquial, the readier to circumvent the wiles and extortions of kellner or of garcon.—London Gentlewoman.

A Good Dog.

"What kind of a dog is that?" asked the inquisitive man.

"I dunno jes' what kind of a dog it is," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkle, "but he's got good stock in 'im. De dog is so many kinds of dog dat dat got to be good dog somewhere."—Washington Star.

The Truth.

A teacher in explaining the different kinds of sentences to her class, asked what it would be if she said, "I am looking for a man."

"I don't know," said the boy at the foot of the class, "but I think it would be the truth."—Lucerne Standard.

Looking Backward.

Do you ever look back over your life and think how many times you have made a fool of yourself? We do.—Mancos Times-Tribune.

"Touching Wood."

Can any reader explain the origin of touching wood after boasting of one's exemption from ill fortune?—a species of absit omen practised in Shropshire and Cheshire and probably in many other parts of England. The procedure is of this kind. "I'm thankful to say I never broke a bone or even had a bad sprain in my life—well, I'd better touch wood," and a chair or table or anything near that is wooden is touched. Can the custom come from the lingering memory of the veneration attached to relics of the true cross?—London Notes and Queries.

Touching a Button.

Wife—I've just been reading an article on electricity, John, and it appears that before long we shall be able to get pretty well everything we want by just touching a button. Husband—You'd never be able to get anything that way. Wife—Why not? Husband—Because nothing on earth would ever make you touch a button. Look at my shirt!

A man should never be ashamed of own he has been in the wrong, but saying in other words that he is wiser today than yesterday.

A Willits Catastrophe

Charles Whited had a plague of cats the other night. Felines to the number of half a dozen discovered a hole in the floor and entered the saloon. While cavorting and making night hideous they overturned and broke several bottles of whisky. The fumes of the liquor intoxicated the tabbies, and for awhile there was a wild orgy. The watchman called in as he imagined there was another "big eat." He found the cats in various compromising attitudes, and clubbed them out.—Little Lake Herald.

News From Point Arena

(From the Record.)

Mike Iversen is recovering from the effects of an accident he met with last week. Prying a board off his old dairy building, the nails gave away rather suddenly and the board struck Mr. Iversen in the face, cutting an ugly gash on the cheek and end of the nose.

Mrs. J. H. Schultze and three children left Saturday by steamer for San Francisco, where Mr. Schultze is going into the cigar business. These people have been at Gualala for the past eighteen years, the burning of the mill necessitating the seeking of a new home. We wish them well.

C. W. Myers, one of our oldest residents, died at his home near town at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, December 11, 1906. The old gentleman was able to walk to town up to a few days before his death, and the natural wearing out of the human machinery through age was the cause of death. He passed peacefully away as in a deep sleep, suffering no pain. Christian William Myers was born in Wawgonfelt, Germany, on November 16, 1824. At the age of fifteen he left the fatherland and went to sea, arriving in California in 1849. He was a ship carpenter by trade and followed the sea for many years, until in 1861, he married in New York City, and six years later he came with his family to Point Arena.

Covelo Happenings

Covelo, Dec. 15.—The worst part of the big storm is now over and everybody is glad. The rain was badly needed. So far 9.65 inches of rain has fallen this season, the precipitation for the month being 7.30. There was considerable high water during the storm. The Eel river ferry sunk and the small boat went down stream. The ferry was raised after the storm, and travel can now be resumed down Eden valley way.

W. F. McClure has given up hope of finishing the Eel river bridge this winter. The recent storm carried away part of the false work, but the rest of the structure is held to the shore by wire cables. The bridge would have been completed long ago had it been possible to get the iron rods.

A big tree was blown across the road near Poonkinny by the big wind of last week, suspending traffic that way for awhile.

Mrs. Eliza Lightfoot came over from Oroville last week and will reside here during the winter.

J. H. Babcock was over from Laytonville recently to inspect the new Eel river bridge.

Amanda Leggett died on the 10th of the month at the age of 15 years.

As You Please.

In the ancient times there lived a wonderfully wise man, of whom it was said that he could answer correctly any question put to him. There was one, however, who thought himself clever enough to outwit the sage. This man took a poor, captive bird and clasped it so closely in his hand that only the head and tail were visible.

"Tell me," said he to the renowned guesser of riddles, "is the bird which I hold in my hand alive or dead?"

If the answer were "Dead," thought this artful plotter, he would just open his hand and let the bird fly. If the answer were "Alive," he would with one little squeeze crush the poor bird to death.

But the wise man proved himself equal to the occasion and replied, "It is as you please."

Each one holds within his or her grasp the fair bird of life. Which is it to be? A blessing or a bane? It is "as you please."

Pressed to Death.

An English court has sentenced a woman to imprisonment because she refused to speak during a trial. The old penalty for remaining mute under similar conditions was being pressed to death. The form of sentence set forth "the prisoner shall be laid in some low, dark house, where he shall lie naked on the earth and one arm shall be drawn to one quarter of the house with a cord and the other arm to another quarter, and in the same manner let it be done with his legs, and let there be laid upon his body iron and stone, as much as he can bear—or more." There the man had to lie. On the following day he was given three morsels of bread without water, on the following water, but no bread. And this was his diet until he died.

Great Discovery.

The editor of a Kansas paper states that he once borrowed a Winchester rifle and started up the street a few days after to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the warpath, and every one he met insisted on paying what he owed him. One man wiped out a debt of ten years' standing. On his return to his office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, ten bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips that had been brought in. We would like to borrow a Winchester for a day or two. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Disadvantage of Health.

A visitor among the poor of the east end of London found unexpected testimony to the disadvantages of health in one of his calls. Mrs. B. had a family of a dozen children, and, like most of her class, she had her tale of woe to tell. "How are the children, Mrs. B.?" inquired the caller. "All very well, indeed, sir; very well, indeed," was the answer. "You ought to be thankful, I'm sure, with so much sickness about." "Yes, sir; I suppose I ought to be thankful; but, I tell you, when they're well they eat an awful lot."

A Horse and a Cow.

When in my teens, milking seven cows morning and evening and toiling on the farm all day, I made favorites of a bay mare and a Durham cow—Molly and Bess. Talk about your physical sympathy! Why, it was pathetic. Molly was my saddle horse, a single footer of rare excellence. I could ride her with one finger on the reins into the most forbidding places. Old Bess—oh, she used to kick a tooth out once in awhile and put her foot in the pail of milk, but the dear girl would follow me about with the affection of a child! Well, I was absent from the old home five years and returning found that of all the animals only Molly and Bess remained. Imagine my distress when Molly refused to notice me at all! While wondering at this loss of friendship I felt a warm, rasplike thing going over my hand, which was behind my back. Turning, I saw dear old Bess. Without notice she had come to lick me. If ever animal spoke with eyes and manner she did. Her happiness at seeing me again after so long a period was apparent to all observers, and during my brief stay at home it was all I could do to keep her from following me into the house. —New York Press.

No "Deadhead" Trip.

One of the most famous of American shipping lines in the palmy days of our marine was the Cope line, which ran between Philadelphia and Liverpool, says the author of "Memoirs of Charles H. Cramp." By this line John Randolph of Roanoke determined to go to Russia when he had been appointed minister to that country by President Jackson. Entering the office of the company in Philadelphia, he said to a clerk in his usual grandiloquent manner:

"Sir, I wish to see Thomas P. Cope."

He was shown to Mr. Cope's office.

"I am John Randolph of Roanoke," he said. "I wish to take passage to Liverpool in one of your ships."

If he expected to be tendered a pass he was grievously disappointed.

"I am Thomas Cope," replied the head of the line. "If thee goes aboard the ship and selects thy stateroom and will pay $150 thee may go."

A Timely Shake.

Some years ago the Duke of Connaught visited Japan and was taken by Sir Edwin Arnold round the bazars of Tokyo, where he bought many curious toys and specimens of Japanese art. In the evening he remarked to Sir Edwin that he had seen most of the sights, but had not experienced any of the earthquakes which are so common in Japan.

"I suppose you cannot show me one?" said the duke jestingly.

Immediately the house shook, the chandelier swayed backward and forward, the china and glass on the table rattled, and the door burst open.

"Why, Sir Edwin, you are a magician!" remarked the duke as the shock, which had happened at so curious a moment, subsided.

HIGHLAND CROFTERS.

How They Lived In the Middle of the Last Century.

In the middle of the last century the crofters in the west highlands seldom saw money and never needed it. They erected for themselves huts mostly built of turf, floored with clay and roofed with heather. They kept a few cattle, goats and sheep, which grazed at will on the open hillside and provided them with milk and wool. They lived a truly simple life, and their needs were few. They grew oats for their own food and potatoes, which formed their other chief article of diet. Tea was an unknown luxury. It was by no means uncommon to find persons who had never tasted it. Wheaten bread had never been seen in those parts. Their clothes were made from the fleeces of their own sheep, spun and woven by the good wives during the long winter nights and dyed from the simple dyes made from the lichens which grew on the stems of trees or on the bowlders of rock in the neighborhood. The whisky they drank came from secret stills on the hillside and had never paid excise. The nearest parish church was often many miles away. No school was there for the children. Very few of them, indeed, could read or write. Still fewer had ever heard a word of English spoken. Their spiritual needs, however, were not neglected, for they received constant visits from the "men," as they were called, who had constituted themselves the spiritual guides of their neighborhood. —Blackwood's Magazine.

Old Time Floggings.

An act of the time of Queen Elizabeth ordained that vagrants were to be "stripped from the middle upward and whipped till the body is bloody." Fourpence each was the recognized charge made by the "whipman" for every male and female vagrant who passed through his hands, but on special occasions this sum was exceeded. Says the constable's account of Great Staughton, Huntingdonshire: "May, 1691.—Paid in charges taking up a distracted woman, watching her and whipping her next day, 8 shillings 6 pence." After whipping people according to the statute the authorities sometimes gave them a letter recommending constables and others "to be as charitable as the law permits."

The Mind's Eye.

It will probably be news to most people to hear that rudimentary traces of a third eye exist among all vertebrates, including man. In the human race the third eye forms part of the pineal gland, a small mass about the size of a pea in almost the very center of the brain. Possibly, therefore, there was more actual truth in the well known expression "the mind's eye" than its originator dreamed of.

A Change of Policy

Editor Cavanagh has decided that a newspaper does too much charity work and in future is going to run his plant on business principles. He hits the nail on the head in the following truthful article:

From now on the Advocate will be conducted on a strictly business plan, the same as the merchant uses in conducting a successful store. We have been generous, and in so doing, have given away hundreds of dollars worth of advertising, but we have come to the conclusion, after an experience of many years, that the more a man in the newspaper business gives away, the less he is thought of and the more he is imposed on. We have run double column programs, taking up a column of space or over, time and again, not charging for the same, and the same can be said of many other kinds of advertisements that we have given away week after week and month afer month, some of the favored ones not even taking the paper. But all such nonsense ceases from now on, and in the future if you want to bring an entertainment or any other advertising scheme before the public step up and pay for it, the same as you do when you buy an article in the store. We have given the people of Fort Bragg a printing plant that is a credit to Mendocino county, and we believe it is the duty of the people of this city to help to pay for it.

During the past few months all kinds of paper has advanced considerable in price, but we have not raised a cent in job work. We have been beat, however, so much on this kind of work that in the future job work must be paid for as soon as completed, with the exception of the business houses in town.

In the future don't have the gall to ask us to run your ads for nothing. We have to pay our bills the first of every month—at least we make a stagger at it. Suppose you do the same.

STATE VOTE TABULATED

Secretary of State Curry has now tabulated the vote cast ta the recent election. It presents some interesting figures for study. Theodore A. Bell is defeated for governor by the small plurality of 8242. He has certainly made one of the most remarkable runs ever made in the history of the state, and although defeated he ran on an average of 64,000 votes ahead of the rest of the state ticket. This has all the moral effects of victory and Theodore Bell is not dead. The people now realize what he is and will rally to his standard stronger than ever now that they see there is some hope for him. The difficult thing during the campaign was to convince the people that Bell had a chance. Now they can see he had a chance despite the fact that all the big dailies were against him, the people will rally to his standard four years hence and elect him governor by a large majority.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS AT WENDLING

Wendling, Dec. 17.—It has been so long since this little burg was heard from that people will begin to think we have ceased to exist, but we are all here nevertheless.

Carl Bachem, who has been keeping books for the Stearns Lumber company, left Friday for Point Arena where he has a better position.

Joe Dehaven had a bad fall Sunday night throwing his arm out of place. He has not been able to do any work since the accident.

Life Ball from Albion was in town Monday on business.

The Albion woods crew seem to mean business from the noise they are making just below here.

Walter Day, of Christine, was in town Monday on business.

Nearly all of the boys from here are intending to spend Christmas in the city.

The mill is now running at a good clip, cutting from 50,000 to 60,000 feet per day. PIONEER.

HEAVY STORM ON THE COAST

A rain and wind storm of unusual violence visited the coast from the south last Monday morning. From 8:30 a. m. until nearly noon shingles and lumber could be seen flying in the air and pedestrians had difficulty in traversing the streets. Several windmills fared badly and the lumber yard looked as if a Kansas cyclone had struck it. The tracks became clogged and the cars could not be run, necessitating the closing down of the mill for half a day.

The storm was felt at Greenwood in all its fury. The incline running from the yard to the landing was lifted up and laid on the bank intact. The Valenti barn and the company's barn were blown down; a section of the L. E. White Lumber company's store front was blown in; a large part of one side of the mill roof was blown off. The report also came in that the wind turned over the stage running to Boonville. Along the county roads fences and telephone poles were down for a couple of miles out of Greenwood. A. N. Nolan's barn went flat to the ground and exposed a big lot of hay to the elements.

E. W. Dillingham's barn on Navarro ridge blew down.

The weather prophets along the coast to Elk say that this is the worst storm that we shall have this winter.

A letter to H. H. Brown from his son Leslie, who is an employee of the Acme Lumber company, said that the storm was so severe in his section of the city that everybody ceased labor and went home for the day. Leslie expects to be home for the holidays.—Beacon.

TO PLANT TREES ON DENUDED LANDS

The Union Lumber company, of Fort Bragg, is advocating a system of tree planting that should appeal to everyone who is in favor of retaining the splendidly forested hills of Imperial Mendocino. That company has made application to the state forester, through its president, for plans for planting eucalyptus trees on its 30,000 acres of land that has been cut over and is now laying idle. State Forester Lull will undertake the work of furnishing the plans, and it is an interesting fact that this is the first time in the history of California that the forester has done this. Heretofore the plans have all been provided by the forest service at Washington.

All the great lumber companies in California appreciate the situation that the lands over which they have cut can be put to some commercial value by planting trees that have a fast growth, and at the same time can be used for commercial purposes. The state forester will shortly go to the company's tract, and after making experiments will draw up the plans for planting and the kind of trees to use. This will be an experiment, and at first only a small tract will be planted.

At the present rate of cutting it is estimated that the redwood forests will have disappeared in a few years, but the government has now taken steps in conjunction with the state to prevent this happening by a system of complete reforestation.—Little Lake Herald.
